Loss of Appetite.

As a general rule there is nothing serious about a loss of appetite and if you skip a meal or only eat two meals a day for a few days you will soon have a relish for your meal when meal time comes. Bear in mind that at least five hours would always elapse between meals so as to give the food ample time to digest and the stomach a period of rest before a second meal is taken. Then if you eat no more than you crave and take a reasonable amount of outdoor exercise every day you will not need to worry about your appetite. When the loss of appetite caused by constipation is so often the case that should be corrected at once. A dose of Chamberlain's Tablets will do—Adv.

The MYSTERY of HARTLEY HOUSE

by Clifford S. Raymond Illustrated by Irwin Myer Copyright by George H. Doran Co.

To me, after that first dinner with Mrs. Sidney and her daughter, the mystery was a romantic folly. Isabel had captivated me, my sense, my rationality, my judgment, my mind, fancy and emotions. Beauty and youth alone are enough to do this for an imaginative young man, and when attractive aspects of character are back of beauty and youth, and when the young man looks forward to a probability of that consequent circumstance, proximity, he may be excused if his feet lightly touch the floor. I was captured and I felt it after that first dinner—knowing it and both loved and dreaded it. I was about to make a fool of myself and be at once a happy and a miserable fool.

In the exalted state of egotistic emotions which I have outlined, I went to Mr. Sidney's room after dinner and sat with him for two hours. I began to appreciate how charmingly his life was decorated. A really rare subtlety of art was used in bringing a warm color into this indomitable but feeble man's winter of life. I did not fully appreciate until later what thought and care lay behind the unstudied comforts and sensations Hartley house offered.

Mr. Sidney was white haired and very gracious. His manner was a warm cordiality. It was not precise. It was relaxed, but it was benignant. Later I saw how his presence pervaded the place.

We had a cheerful talk. What he said suggested to me that my world could not have been more than a hundred years old at the most, and that his included the period of organic evolution in which the period of organic evolution is but a pin prick. Youth is a series of such conceptions of life, but I had an interesting evening.

Before I said good night, Jed came in with two bottles of wine. He stood and looked at me unpleasantly. I arose to go, and Mr. Sidney said:

"I think we shall like each other. At least, I hope you will be comfortable, even happy. And don't be distressed about this drink. I don't drink it any more. Jed drinks it, and I enjoy seeing him do it."

A whispering will was rampant in the woods at night, and its call came from dark recesses, odorous and mysteriously veiled. Having said good night to Mr. Sidney, I had gone to my room with a book from the library. The night was fresh, sweet-smelling and cool. I had read for several hours when I heard the cut bolt in my door thrown against the piece of metal which had been left in the socket.

There was no transom above the door, and evidently the threshold kept light from a peering beneath it. I had been reading, as I said, for three hours at least, and whoever tried to bolt me in and good reason to think I was asleep.

I knew it was the person I was. It was Jed. Knowing I was not locked in, I was undisturbed and continued reading. Shortly afterward I heard a woman's voice in conversation far down the hall. It arose abruptly to a sharp cry, and I had to lay aside my book and support the first bolt of my door was not a thing I had not wanted to do until the secret of its being locked could be discovered by revealing that it was not.

I hurried out and down the hall, and found a woman by the wrist. Both of them saw me coming. She released herself from his relaxing grip by a quick jerk and ran. He stood until I came up.

"What is the matter?" I asked.

"What makes you think anything is the matter?" he asked.

"Don't talk to me for a fool," I said. "That was Mrs. Sidney who screamed. You were holding her. It seems to me it needs an explanation."

"Who are you that you need an explanation?" he asked.

"I am a student of the school."

"I know I am. If that's satisfactory to your employer, why should it bother me?"

"I don't think it is satisfactory to your employer that you should be making his wife scream at midnight. Look here, you're a servant in this house. What have you to say for yourself? I'm looking for an explanation of this."

Jed had been angry and angry, but now he was calm.

"All right," he said, "but if you want to be decent about it, ask Mrs. Sidney whether she wants your help and your advice. That's my advice, young fellow."

And while we were asking how did you get out of your room? You're not supposed to be out. We don't want people in this house running around the hall at this time of night."

"I opened the door and came out. My shadow came out. I heard a scream and a fall."

"What do you mean by that?" he asked. "If he was downing himself, I think he was uncertain whether he should throw the bolt or not. I supposed later that I was right, but Mr. Sidney said I was wrong. I was certain he is a naturally would be, a stranger in so strange a house. It was impossible to sleep and difficult to read. I sat by the window and alternately dozed and read until day broke and the woodhouse began to sing. Then, quietly, I went to bed and had two hours' sleep.

I thought it wise to speak to Mrs. Sidney about the incident of the night. She had seen me, she knew I had talked to Jed, she might or might not know that I recognized her. I might add to her perplexities by suggesting to her, but I might obtain an insight into matters which would enable me to act discreetly and usefully. If I remained ignorant of motives prevailing in the house, I might at any time blunder into a serious mistake. It seemed best to speak to Mrs. Sidney.

I could see when I spoke to her, she had been greatly disturbed, but she was Roman.

WORKS HARD TO AVERT FLU EPIDEMIC

Government and City Health Officials Warn People to Keep Clean.

Stay Away from People with Coughs and Colds.

"Avoid crowds if you want to avoid influenza," says Association for Improving the Conditions of New York.

Keep your hands clean, drink plenty of fresh water, sleep with windows open; eat three uniform meals a day including a good breakfast.

People who have catarrh or frequent colds invite influenza, declares a prominent Kentucky druggist.

The membrane of the throat and nose is raw, sore and tender, and makes a lovely abiding place for germs to thrive and multiply.

He advises an inexpensive home-made remedy that will bring relief in less than a day and will stop all discharge and soothe and heal the inflamed membrane in a few days.

Thousands are making this medicinal remedy at home and anyone who has catarrh or a cold can do the same.

Four three-quarters of an ounce of Mentholized Arcline into a pint bottle, then fill the bottle with water that has been boiled.

Gargle the throat as directed and sniff or spray the liquid into the nostrils twice daily. It's a simple way to get rid of cold and catarrh and keeps the nasal passage and throat clean and healthy.

Nearly all druggists dispense Mentholized Arcline in vials containing exactly three-quarters of an ounce, which is all you need to make a pint of this beautiful medicine.

SIMCO CRUOLEUM

EFFICIENT DANDRUFF COMBATANT

Is endorsed by professionals everywhere. The Connellsville Drug Co. and the Broadway Drug Co. who are the agents, are authorized to return the purchase price if you are not satisfied with the results of using CRUOLEUM.

There is no secret of what gives it its snap and sparkle, its rich light color and high natural purity. CRUOLEUM is a high-grade of pure petroleum, that seems to have caught the very freshness of the sand and rocks through which nature had filtered it from from uncombusted sulphur and carbon; it is wonderfully cleansing and antiseptic.

You may find many a bottle labeled "Petroleum," but there is only one SIMCO CRUOLEUM.

The name SIMCO is a mark of excellence, a mark of a dependable firm which is careful to select chemical quality; it is a guarantee of a superior product. Just go down to the Connellsville Drug Co. or the Broadway Drug Co., Scotland, throw down the name your CRUOLEUM. It will solve your hair and scalp problems. Let it prove to you by actual trial, at our expense if it fails, how this soap has helped many others. If your druggist cannot supply you, send us 40c and we will forward you half a pint bottle by return mail. Wm. M. Simpson Drug Co., Wholesale Druggists, Williamsburg Station, Pittsburgh, Pa.—Adv.

CUMBERLAND SHUT OUT
BY THE INDEPENDENTS

The Connellsville Independents
tacked up another victory yesterday afternoon when the Western Maryland club of Cumberland, Md., was snowed under by a score of 12-0. Witnessed by the largest crowd of the season, the contest was a thriller until the sixth when the visitors crumbled.
After that it was easy picking for the locals.

With the first paying crowd of several weeks the management of the baseball club is able to continue the sport here for another test. Irwin, a club which has ranked among the leaders of independent baseball in the Pittsburg district, will be here Saturday.

The score by innings:

Connellsville — 200 004 50X — 12 13 2

man; Herrod and Jones.

FLORENCE TAKES TWO
FROM FORT HILLERS

Florence won two games from Fort Hill at the big picnic held by the Florence people yesterday. The morning game was won 3-1, with Randolph pitching air-tight ball. He allowed only one scratch hit.

In the second game Fort Hill scored one run in the fourth inning. In the seventh Randolph knocked a long drive to left center for a home run.
A dispute followed over the ground rule and Miller took his Tigers from the field, forfeiting the game.
